'Laugh ye profane and swell and burst with bold impiety

Yet shall ye live for ever curs'd

And seek in vain to die

Ye stand upon a dreadful steep

And all beneath is Hell

Your weighty guilt will sink you deep

Where the old serpent fell.
Then shall ye curse that fatal day
With flames upon your tongues
When you exchanged your souls away
For vanity and songs
Behold the saints rejoice to die
For Heaven shines round their Heads
And Angel guards prepare to fly
Around their fainting beds
Their longing spirits part and rise
To that Celestial Seat
Above these ruinable? Skies
They make their last retreat.'
